Dear Shareholder,

This semiannual report covers the six-month reporting period ended 30 June 2025 (the "Reporting Period"). On the subsequent pages, you will find details regarding investment results.

Several central banks lowered interest rates as inflation eased during the Reporting Period. Meanwhile, generally resilient global economic growth, geopolitical issues, and concerns over U.S. trade tariffs affected markets.

Several central banks continue to adjust monetary policy

Inflation readings improved for many major economies, although they generally remained above central bank targets. Changing trade dynamics have raised the prospect of higher inflation. Against this backdrop, the U.S. Federal Reserve (the "Fed") kept rates on hold at its meetings in January, March, May, and June 2025 amid uncertainty regarding the inflation outlook. The European Central Bank cut interest rates four times during the Reporting Period due to growth concerns. The Bank of England lowered rates in February and May 2025. The Bank of Japan was an outlier among major developed markets, raising its short-term policy rate in January 2025 but has since remained on hold.

Financial markets generally delivered solid returns

The yield on the benchmark 10-year U.S. Treasury moved lower during the Reporting Period. Yields on 10-year government bonds in many other developed markets were mixed. The global bond market experienced periods of volatility but delivered positive returns, with lower-rated bonds generally outperforming higher-rated bonds. Global equity returns were strong, led by Europe and emerging markets. In the commodity market, gold hit an all-time high in April 2025, while other prices closed mixed. In the currency market, the U.S. dollar weakened against the euro, British pound, and Japanese yen.

With our time-tested investment process, PIMCO aims to leverage the structural advantages of active bond management for the benefit of our clients. We continue to work diligently to navigate dynamic global markets and manage the assets that you have entrusted to us. We encourage you to speak with your financial advisor about your goals and to visit global.pimco.com for our latest insights.

Sincerely,

Craig A. Dawson
Chairman

Important Information About the Funds

This material is authorised for use only when preceded or accompanied by the current PIMCO Funds: Global Investors Series plc Prospectus. Investors should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of these Funds carefully before investing. This and other information is contained in the Prospectus. Please read the Prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

We believe that bond funds have an important role to play in a well-diversified investment portfolio. It is important to note, however, that in an environment where interest rates may trend upward, rising rates will negatively impact the performance of most bond funds, and fixed income securities held by a Fund are likely to decrease in value. The price volatility of fixed income securities can also increase during periods of rising interest rates, resulting in increased losses to a Fund. Bond funds and individual bonds with a longer duration (a measure used to determine the sensitivity of a security's price to changes in interest rates) tend to be more sensitive to changes in interest rates, usually making them more volatile than securities or funds with shorter durations. The longer-term performance of most bond funds has benefited from capital gains in part resulting from an extended period of declining interest rates. In the event interest rates increase, these capital gains should not be expected to recur.

The Funds may be subject to various risks in addition to those described above, in the Funds' Prospectus and in the Financial Risks section of the Notes to Financial Statements. Some of these risks may include, but are not limited to, the following: real rate risk, derivative risk, small company risk, foreign security risk, high-yield security risk, specific sector investment risks and epidemic/pandemic related risk. The Funds may use derivative instruments for hedging purposes or as part of an investment strategy. The use of these instruments may involve certain costs and risks such as liquidity risk, interest rate risk, market risk, credit risk, management risk and the risk that a Fund could not close out a position when it would be most advantageous to do so. Funds investing in derivatives could lose more than the principal amount invested in these instruments. Investing in foreign securities may entail risk due to foreign economic and political developments; this risk may be enhanced when investing in emerging markets. High-yield bonds typically have a lower credit rating than other bonds. Lower rated bonds generally involve a greater risk to principal than higher rated bonds. Smaller companies may be more volatile than larger companies and may entail more risk. Concentrating investments in individual sectors may add additional risk and volatility compared to a diversified fund.

Certain Funds may pursue an environmental, social and governance (ESG) investing strategy, which typically selects or excludes securities of certain issuers for reasons other than financial performance. Such strategy carries the risk that a Fund's performance will differ from similar funds that do not utilise an ESG investing strategy. For example, the application of this strategy could affect a Fund's exposure to certain sectors or types of investments, which could negatively impact a Fund's performance. There is no guarantee that the factors utilised by the Investment Advisor will reflect the opinions of any particular investor, and the factors utilised by the Investment Advisor may differ from the factors that any particular investor considers relevant in evaluating an issuer's ESG practices. Future ESG development and regulation may impact a Fund's implementation of its investment strategy. In addition, there may be cost implications arising from ESG related due diligence, increased reporting and use of third-party ESG data providers.

Classifications of Fund portfolio holdings in this report are made according to financial reporting standards. The classification of a particular portfolio holding as shown in the Schedule of Investments and other sections of this report may differ from the classification used for the Fund's compliance calculations, including those used in the Fund's Prospectus, investment objectives, regulatory, and other investment limitations and policies, which may be based on different asset class, sector or geographical classifications. All Funds are separately monitored for compliance with respect to the Prospectus and regulatory requirements. Within the Schedule of Investments specific portfolio holdings may be aggregated where investments have the same attributes (i.e. coupon rates and maturity dates).

The geographical classifications of securities in this report are classified by the country of incorporation of a holding. In certain instances, a security's country of incorporation may be different from its country of economic exposure.

Certain instruments in which the Funds may invest have historically referenced the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") to, among other things, determine payment obligations, financing terms, hedging strategies or investment value. LIBOR was traditionally an average interest rate, determined by the ICE Benchmark Administration, that banks charge one another for the use of short-term money. As of June 30, 2023, LIBOR was determined to be no longer representative but certain settings of LIBOR continued to be published synthetically until September 30, 2024. Publication of all LIBOR settings has since permanently ceased. Alternative reference rates to LIBOR have been established in most major currencies and markets in these new rates are continuing to develop (e.g., the Secured Overnight Financing Rate (SOFR) for USD-LIBOR). While the transition from LIBOR has been substantially completed, there remains residual risks associated with the transition that may impact markets or particular investments and, as such, the full impact of the transition on the Funds or the financial instruments in which the Funds invests cannot yet be fully determined. For example, so-called "tough legacy" contracts have LIBOR interest rate provisions with no fallback provisions contemplating the permanent discontinuation of LIBOR, fallback provisions which may have not effectively resulted in a transition away from LIBOR prior to LIBOR's replacement date or otherwise have inadequate fallback provisions. On March 15, 2022, the Adjustable Interest Rate (LIBOR) Act was signed into law. This law provides a statutory fallback mechanism on a nationwide basis to replace LIBOR with a benchmark rate that is selected by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System based on SOFR for tough legacy contracts governed by U.S. law. On February 27, 2023, the Federal Reserve System's final rule in connection with this law became effective, establishing benchmark replacements based on SOFR and Term SOFR (a forward-looking measurement of market expectations of SOFR implied from certain derivatives markets) for applicable tough legacy contracts. Certain of the Funds' investments may have involved individual tough legacy contracts which may be subject to the Adjustable Interest Rate (LIBOR) Act or were subject to synthetic LIBOR and no assurances can be given that these measures will have had the intended effects.

On each individual Fund Summary page in this Semiannual Report, the net performance chart measures performance assuming that all dividend and capital gain distributions were reinvested. Returns do not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on: (i) Fund distributions; or (ii) the redemption of Fund shares. The net performance chart measures each Fund's performance against the performance of a broad-based securities market index (benchmark index). Each Fund's past performance, before and after taxes, is not necessarily an indication of how the Fund will perform in the future. An investment in a Fund is not a deposit of a bank and is not guaranteed or insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. It is possible to lose money on investments in the Funds. The value of and income from shares in the Fund may go up or down and you may not get back the amount you have invested in the Funds.

Emerging Markets Short-Term Local Currency Fund seeks maximum total return, consistent with preservation of capital and prudent investment management, by investing at least 80% of its assets in currencies of, or in Fixed Income Instruments (as defined in the Prospectus) denominated in currencies of, emerging markets. The Investment Advisor has a broad discretion to identify countries that it considers to qualify as emerging markets. The Investment Advisor will select the Fund's country and currency composition based on its evaluation of relative interest rates, inflation rates, exchange rates, monetary and fiscal policies, trade and current account balances, and other specific factors the Investment Advisor believes to be relevant. The Fund is likely to concentrate its investments in Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America and the emerging countries of Europe. The Fund may invest in instruments whose return is based on the return of an emerging market security such as a derivative instrument, rather than investing directly in emerging market securities. The average portfolio duration of this Fund varies based on the Investment Advisor's forecast for interest rates and, under normal market conditions, is not expected to exceed two years. The Fund may invest all of its assets in high yield securities, subject to a maximum of 15% of its assets in securities rated lower than B by Moody's or S&P or equivalently rated by Fitch (or, if unrated, determined by the Investment Advisor to be of comparable quality).
